global change and species interactions in terrestrial

The main drivers of global environmental change (CO<sub>2</sub> enrichment, nitrogen deposition, climate, biotic invasions and land use) cause extinctions and alter species distributions, and recent evidence shows that they exert pervasive impacts on various antagonistic and mutualistic interactions among species. In this review, we synthesize data from ...

the emergence of multispecies ethnography kirksey 2010

An emergent cohort of â€œmultispecies ethnographersâ€• began to place a fresh emphasis on the subjectivity and agency of organisms whose lives are entangled with humans. Multispecies ethnography emerged at the intersection of three interdisciplinary strands of inquiry: environmental studies, science and technology studies (STS), and animal studies.
